A two-tiered play centre with a large castle tower and activity elements is fully suited for developmental play and offers activities for children of various age groups. Stairs with handrails, ladders, climbing walls and platforms offer access to the play centre. The lower tier is created for toddlers and contains an abundance of elements that help develop their physical and motor skills. Stairs with handrails lead to the lower platform. To move on a balance bridge with moving steps, a net bridge, a sloping bridge or rock climbing wall have to be crossed. The lower play area is lined with moving and rotating activity walls, a clock, binoculars and several fine motor skills panels. A small and sturdy slide offers a way down. The playground for older children with its several platforms, tunnels, climbing walls and portholes is housed on the higher tier. The big, roofed platform offers two ways for sliding down: a tunnel slide or a fireman's pole. The two floors of the castle tower are connected by a rope climbing element, which provides a challenging climb between the two levels. The lower level houses a fun play corner with a bench and either kitchen or car dashboard elements.
